

2017

December 2018
Technician Commitment partners with the Royal Institution Christmas Lectures to showcase technical expertise on a national stage.

November 2018
"The Technician Commitment: One Year In" report is launched at the Tower of London, the venue for the third sector Signatory Event.

April 2018
The third round of signatories to join the Technician Commitment are announced, bringing the total to 66.

31 May 2017
The Technician Commitment is launched with 36 founding signatories.

June 2018
The 36 founding signatories submit the first Institutional Self Assessments & Action Plans to the Technician Commitment Steering Board. The second round of signatories submit theirs in October.

20 September 2017
Technicians Commitment hosts its first signatory event. The second round of signatories were also announced in September.

2018

September 2019
Technician Commitment introduces Supporter status to offer opportunities for a wider range of organisations to join. The Institute of Physics, Royal Society of Chemistry and Royal Society of Biology are the first professional bodies to formally support the initiative.

June 2019
The Technician Commitment publishes its first research report - 'Technicians: Vital front-line support for student well-being & mental health!'

April 2019
Technician Commitment partners with Times Higher Education to create a brand new 'Outstanding Technician of the Year' category in the Times Higher Education Awards. The inaugural award is presented to the Open University's Barbara Kunz at a ceremony in November.

November 2019
The Technician Commitment partners on a report entitled 'Equality, Diversity & Inclusion: A Technician Lens'.

December 2019
The Technician Commitment reaches 88 signatory institutions.

February 2020
Technicians receive support from the UK's largest research funder when UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) become the first funder to join the Technician Commitment.

2019

Technician Commitment

Timeline

Throughout 2020
A research report from the Technician Commitment and partners highlights the impact of COVID-19 on the technical community in higher education and research. In July 2020, the UK government's R&D Roadmap sets out the UK's vision and ambition for science, research and innovation. It features the importance of technicians and the Technician Commitment.

2020

May 2022
The Research Concordats and Agreements Review publishes findings on the Technician Commitment and a range of other Concordats. The Technician Commitment initiative is recognised for its positive effect on working environments - scoring 72% for this indicator, the highest score across initiatives.

January 2021
The Technician Commitment launches the Collaboration Fund - providing funding to support signatories develop their own initiatives with partners to support the goals of the Commitment. The fund was reopened for a second year in January 2022.

2021

November 2021
In-person activities resume with a Signatory Event at County Hall, London. An independent review of the Technician Commitment by York Consulting finds that 1 in 3 of technicians surveyed agreed that technicians were more recognised within their institutions because of the Technician Commitment.

September 2021
The Technician Commitment collaborates with TALENT and UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) to create new opportunities to fund technical staff in research.

July 2021
The UK government publishes the R&D People and Culture Strategy. It launches with input from stakeholders including Kelly Vere on behalf of the Technician Commitment.

2022

December 2018
Technician Commitment partners with the Royal Institution Christmas Lectures to showcase technical expertise on a national stage.

November 2018
“The Technician Commitment: One Year In” report is launched at the Tower of London, the venue for the third sector Signatory Event.

April 2018
The third round of signatories to join the Technician Commitment are announced, bringing the total to 66.

31 May 2017
The Technician Commitment is launched with 36 founding signatories.

2018

2017

September 2019
Technician Commitment introduces Supporter status to offer opportunities for a wider range of organisations to join. The Institute of Physics, Royal Society of Chemistry and Royal Society of Biology are the first professional bodies to formally support the initiative.

2019

June 2019
The Technician Commitment publishes its first research report - ‘Technicians: Vital front-line support for student well-being & mental health’.

June 2018
The 36 founding signatories submit the first Institutional Self Assessments & Action Plans to the Technician Commitment Steering Board. The second round of signatories submit theirs in October.

20 September 2017
Technicians Commitment hosts its first signatory event. The second round of signatories were also announced in September.

April 2019
Technician Commitment partners with Times Higher Education to create a brand new ‘Outstanding Technician of the Year’ category in the Times Higher Education Awards. The inaugural award is presented to the Open University’s Barbara Kunz at a ceremony in November.

December 2019
The Technician Commitment reaches 88 signatory institutions.

February 2020
Technicians receive support from the UK’s largest research funder when UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) become the first funder to join the Technician Commitment.

2020

November 2019
The Technician Commitment partners on a report entitled ‘Equality, Diversity & Inclusion: A Technician Lens’.

Technician Commitment Timeline

Throughout 2020
A research report from the Technician Commitment and partners highlights the impact of COVID-19 on the technical community in higher education and research. In July 2020, the UK government’s R&D Roadmap sets out the UK’s vision and ambition for science, research and innovation. It features the importance of technicians and the Technician Commitment.

2021

January 2021
The Technician Commitment launches the Collaboration Fund - providing funding to support signatories develop their own initiatives with partners to support the goals of the Commitment. The fund was reopened for a second year in January 2022.

May 2022
The Research Concordats and Agreements Review publishes findings on the Technician Commitment and a range of other Concordats. The Technician Commitment initiative is recognised for its positive effect on working environments – scoring 72% for this indicator, the highest score across initiatives.

2022

November 2021
In-person activities resume with a Signatory Event at County Hall, London. An independent review of the Technician Commitment by York Consulting finds that 1 in 3 of technicians surveyed agreed that technicians were more recognised within their institutions because of the Technician Commitment.

September 2021
The Technician Commitment collaborates with TALENT and UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) to create new opportunities to fund technical staff in research.

July 2021
The UK government publishes the R&D People and Culture Strategy. It launches with input from stakeholders including Kelly Vere on behalf of the Technician Commitment.